

The management of Ewaso Nyiro North Development Authority is facing investigations over claims of intimidation, harassment, sacking and abuse of staff.

A Senate panel has invited the Kenya National Commission on Human Rights and the National Gender and Equality Commission to probe the allegations within three weeks and report back to munity and Regional Development—to investigate and provide remedial measures.

The committee, chaired by Nairobi Senator Johnson Sakaja, made the recommendations after its enquiries established that the authority's staff members are dissatisfied with the management and its handling of their welfare.
